Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment and arguments of May 21, 2007 are acknowledged and have been entered.
2. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. Claims 1, 2, 4-6, and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Volz in view of MacDonald et al. and Spicher
Volz discloses a reticulated polyurethane foam which is to be installed in a fuel tank to suppress an explosion in the tank, the foam comprising a volume electrical resistivity of less than $10E12$ ohm-cm at 70 degrees F. Volz also discloses using ammonium salt to form the foam as recited in claim 12. Volz does not disclose a density less than 1.0 pounds per cubic feet or adding antistatic agents as recited. MacDonald et al. teaches a polyurethane foam which suppresses an explosion in which the foam has a density a density less than 1.0 pounds per cubic foot (column 2, lines 14-15) and Spicher teaches adding antistatic agents including potassium hexafluorophosphate to polyurethane foam. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device of Volz by providing the foam with a density of less than 1.0 pounds per cubic feet as taught by MacDonald et al. since MacDonald et al. teaches that such densities are known in forming polyurethane foams for suppressing an explosion and to have added an antistatic agent as taught by Spicher to prevent static electric discharges which can cause an explosion. The device of Volz, MacDonald et al., and Spicher can be installed in a fuel tank and thus carry out the method as recited. The amount of coverage as recited in claim 5 would have been a matter of design choice as would have been the amounts of the agents as recited in claim 14. Volz also discloses using quaternary ammonium compounds as recited in claim 12 and metallic salts as recited in claim 13. The amounts as recited in claim 14 would have been matters of design choice since Volz has already disclosed the ingredients. Regarding claim 15, whether a product is patentable depends on whether it is known in the art or it is obvious and is not governed by whether the process by which it is made is patentable.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
